HONGKONG, MAY 4rt, 1871.

In it difficult to understand why judges and prosecuting counsel are so intensely exercised on the score of possible error in the convic--tion of a prisoner, while they feel no pain whatever at an erroneous acquittal. Juries. too, generally under the influence of the wonderfully merciful atmosphere of the Court, show a great deal of reluctance to give the doubt in any case against the prisoner. Prohably this arises from false notions regarding the object which ought to be in view in trying a prisoner. There seems to be a kind of idea current, (possibly engendered by those canting abominations, the current expressions "benefit of the doubt,"""protecting the prisoner," "leaning to mercy's side," &c., &c.). that rather than, run the least risk of punishing the wrong man you must run a great deal of risk of letting the right man off. But what do we try men for? In order that they may; if found guilty of a crime, afford, yourself too much. not satisfaction to the law, but a warning to wrong one. But this is not our object. We but on account of others, and therefore we should weigh the consequences to those others rather than to the individual before we arrive in any given case at a decision. If we believe that to acquit this man would be to against him) in following his example, then we ought to convict him. And yet because the evidence is inconsistent that man is not tried. Of course, the Magistrate could not commit. but why could not the trial have proceeded on the Coroner's finding, and the inconsistencies all have been placed before the jury? It is a peculiar fact that early in February four undoubted murders had been recently committed, and a fifth which might have proved to have been manslaughter. Since then, there have been two more murders, and how many have come before a jury? .. Eractly two, and these the two which occurred last, Of these a conviction has been obtained in both cases, but in one the murderers are likely to escape hanging: Thus we shall make one solitary example, where somehow or other six at least ought to have been made. It would not however, be difficult to set the matter right without delay, by a declaration from the CHIEF-JUSTICE us to the rate of interest, which under ordinary circumstances the Court will award. In the present day seven per cent. would probably be quite sufficient, as money is much cheaper than it was formerly. We have received so many complaints from up-country subscribers that we are obliged to muke this somewhat ungenerous request. While gratefully appreciating the high compliment which the Morusail Postal Authorities pay us by selecting the Englishman for perusal, we regret to inform them that the present arrangement intimes actual loss-does not appear to suit the convenience of our subscribers, and we shall therefore, esteem it a favor if Postmasters will he so good as to deliver the newspapers to addressees as soon after receipt as possible, con-sistently with their natural desire to have the carliest information.

THE FRENCH PRESS ON THE LONDON CONFERENCE. The Journal des Debats, speaking of the resuit of the London Conference, says :- " It quires all the proverbial cynicism of the chief organ of the English Government to rejoice at an issue which is only a deep humiliation for. the policy pursued during the last forty years quiousness with which he has yielded to family by the Western Powers. England suffers for her Prassian policy, and Earl Grunville in particular suffers for the unfortunate obsepredilections. Every fruit of the Orimean War is lost. We must not be satisfied with fine words, but frankly face the cituation. As far as we are concerned, we have done for a long time with politics and sentiment. The sword of France is broken to-day. It may once more be unsheathed from the scabbard, but it will not be for Turkey. The aim will not be so distant as the integrity of the Ottoman Empire. Other journals write in the same strain.

COUNT BISMARCK IN FRANKFORT. A correspondent of a home paper says:--Count Bismarck's very short sojourn in Frankfort his proved of greater interest than was expected. At the station a great crowd of people had assembled, together with the heads. of the official departments, and many personal friends of Count Bismarck. The locomotive, decorated with the Imperial eagle, a laurel wrenth, and garlands, entered the station, and the Chancellor was received with authusiastic cheers, which he answered by putting his head out of the window, and nodding his thanks. After a vain attempt to get out of the carriage Hongkong Bank Shares, Old-364 per cent. on the right side, he was formally greeted by the officials, and then entered into a pleasant, Hongkong Bank Shares, New-30 per cent easy conversation with the ladies and gentlemen with whom he had become acquainted Union Insurance Society of Canton, new shares during his earlier residence in the city. The Count was in the best of spirits, full of pleasantries, a few of which I will note. "The wenther was extremely beautiful on the jour. China and Japan Marine Insurance-Tla. 55 ndy," said the Chancellor, among other things. "In France it was quite spring; trees were mostly green; some, indeed, were in blossom; but in Metz the climate was quite German." He asked after the losses sustained by Frankfort in the war, and said that the stay of a part of the army in France was a guaranty that the war indemnity would soon be paid; for the French devoutly wished to get the German soldiers out of the country. "We took possession of only one part of Paris, for the reason that we did not wish another man to be sacrificed. But I think that the National Assembly would rather have seen us occupy the whole of the city, and disarm the 60,000 National Guards." The Count then entered the carriage again, the time being up for proceeding by a connecting line to the Hanau Railroad Station at the other end of the city. From his carriage Biemarck said: "Gentlemen, I know, as citizens of the old German coronation city, you will join with me in a cheer for the Gorman Emperor." Cheer upon cheer for the Gorman Emperor." Cheer upon somewhat abated, Bismarck added." The German Emperor was necessary to us as the symbol of our unity. To him we must firmly hold; and if we hold together we shall never be attacked again." As the train set in motion towards the other station the Count was loudly cheered. Arriving at the Hanau Station, a short stay of ten minutes was made, and s number of prominent ladies and gentlemen bastened to meet the Count. An incident occurred here as comic as it is interesting. A wine merchant of the city stepped up to the carriage door, and, in pure Frankfort dialect, addressed the man of iron in the following terms, which I translate, though their force is greatly lost in the process: "Wine Merchant: Right glad we are, Excellency, that you have heped us to such an honourable peace. We have great respect for you, and you have stood well in our memory from the time that you were first among us. I wish that you could live fifty years longer, and would always take care of us. Count Bismarck : * thank you for your friendly wish. Wine Merchant: 'And then I hope, Excellency, that we shan't bave any more wars.' Count Bismarck: 'As long as we live, we shall certainly have none. Wine Merchant: 'Excellency, you have a mighty long ride to Berlin, and I know that when I have such a journey to make I always go hungry on the way; and so I have brought something - (Draws from under his arm an object an ell in length, and carefully wrapped upin paper which was found to bea long sausage.) Count Bismarck: 'Ha! that's capital. Thunks Is this a Frankfort spusage?' (Hands it over to the adjutant.) Wine Merchant: 'No, not a Frankforter, but a good one; its a Gottinger. But allow me, Excellency, to put just another question—When is the Emperor coming back? Count Bismarck: 'I think on the 15th of March. Wine Merchant: His Majesty bas also had a pretty hard time of it during the severe winter. Count Bismarck: Yes, you are right." Unfortunately, this interesting LAPUTA OUTDONE.—A singular discovery is announced by the Echo Rochelais as having been made by a French professor at the College of Saintes, in Charente Inferieure. It consists " of the singular fact of actually bottling the sun's rays and utilizing them at pleasure. The writer describes the operation as follows:—The professor takes a vasc—the material is not mentioned—and exposes it in a certain position to the direct action of the sun's rays. After it has thus absorbed the heat for the space of a quarter of an hour, it is closed with a cork and hermetically scaled, a smull aperture being left in the cork. Affixing a powerful lens to the vase, he causes the solur rays to converge to a point upon the wick of a common candle, placed on a table at a distance of one yard from the vase. In less than three seconds the wick ignites and lights the candle, which burns Mr. John Hookham, builder, of Deal, has steadily. The writer states that the experiment.

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, by the Rev. W. LOBSCHEID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

OH scope and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exersines for students of a most instructive nature Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accenta being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond n the size of body, thereby effecting a vasi economy of space, schieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. The scope of the work is so great, and its stilitarian purposes so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chi nese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it ex-SHIP AND STEAMBOAT plains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto puges.

CHINESE AND ENGLISH DICTIONARY. THE REVD. W. LOBSOHEID.

THE above work, which has been chiefly I compiled for the purpose of miding students in the study of Chinese literature, comprises many characters but met with in any of the Dictionaries bitherto published. The selection of between 8,000 and 9,000 characters will make it comparatively easy to find a character without counting the strokes of the compound figure, (minus the radical), Office, and of the following Agents:-and the addition of the Synonyms will prove a great help to such as are auxious to acquaint themselves more minutely with the character of the language.
The work contains 584 Imperial Octav pages, and is neatly bound in cloth.

A Political Old Woman. Lady Hester Stanhope was there: he found her very attractive; and so rapid, and decided was her conversation, so full of humour and keen observation, and withal so friendly and instructive, that it was quite impossible not to succumb to ber, and to become her slave, whether laughing or serious. She was certaitly not beautiful; but her tall commanding figure. her large durk eyes and carying expression, braver, aye, and changing as rapidly as ber conversation, and equally vehement, kept him, as he expressed it, in a state of continual admiration. She had little respect for the political condjutors of Mr. Pitt, and delighted to laugh at them. Lord Castlereagh she always called " his monstrous lordship;" but Lord Liverpool was a constant theme for riducule and contempt. Thus, speaking of a design which had been approved of by Pitt, of conferring military decorations, she said it and been stopped by the meddling folly of Lord Liverpool, who insisted upon being consulted on the texture and colours of ribbons: whereas, she thought, as a young woman she is, you will forgive was more capable of settling such a question than an old woman like Lord Liverpool.
